Good morning, rising 10th Graders!

I hope that you are doing well and enjoying the beginning of your summer break. For those of you who do not know me, I am Ms. Kim -- I teach high school ELA, and I am also a Department Chair.

I am writing with a reminder that your summer reading and summer assignments for your ELA and History classes are due when we return to school on Wednesday, August 21st. As rising 10th graders, you should be reading:

- Tell Me How It Ends: An Essay in Forty Questions by Valeria Luiselli, for 10th Grade ELA (American Literature).
- Just Mercy: A Story of Justice and Redemption by Bryan Stevenson, for 10th Grade History.

The instructions and assignments for each book are linked to this email; please make a copy for your own use, or use the paper copy that you received at school. If you did not get one/either of the books, you can pick up what you need from the carts next to the front desk at Boston Prep, during the school's summer hours (photos with more information attached).

Please feel free to reach out with any questions, technology needs, etc. We are looking forward to learning with you in August!

Happy reading,
Ms. Kim
